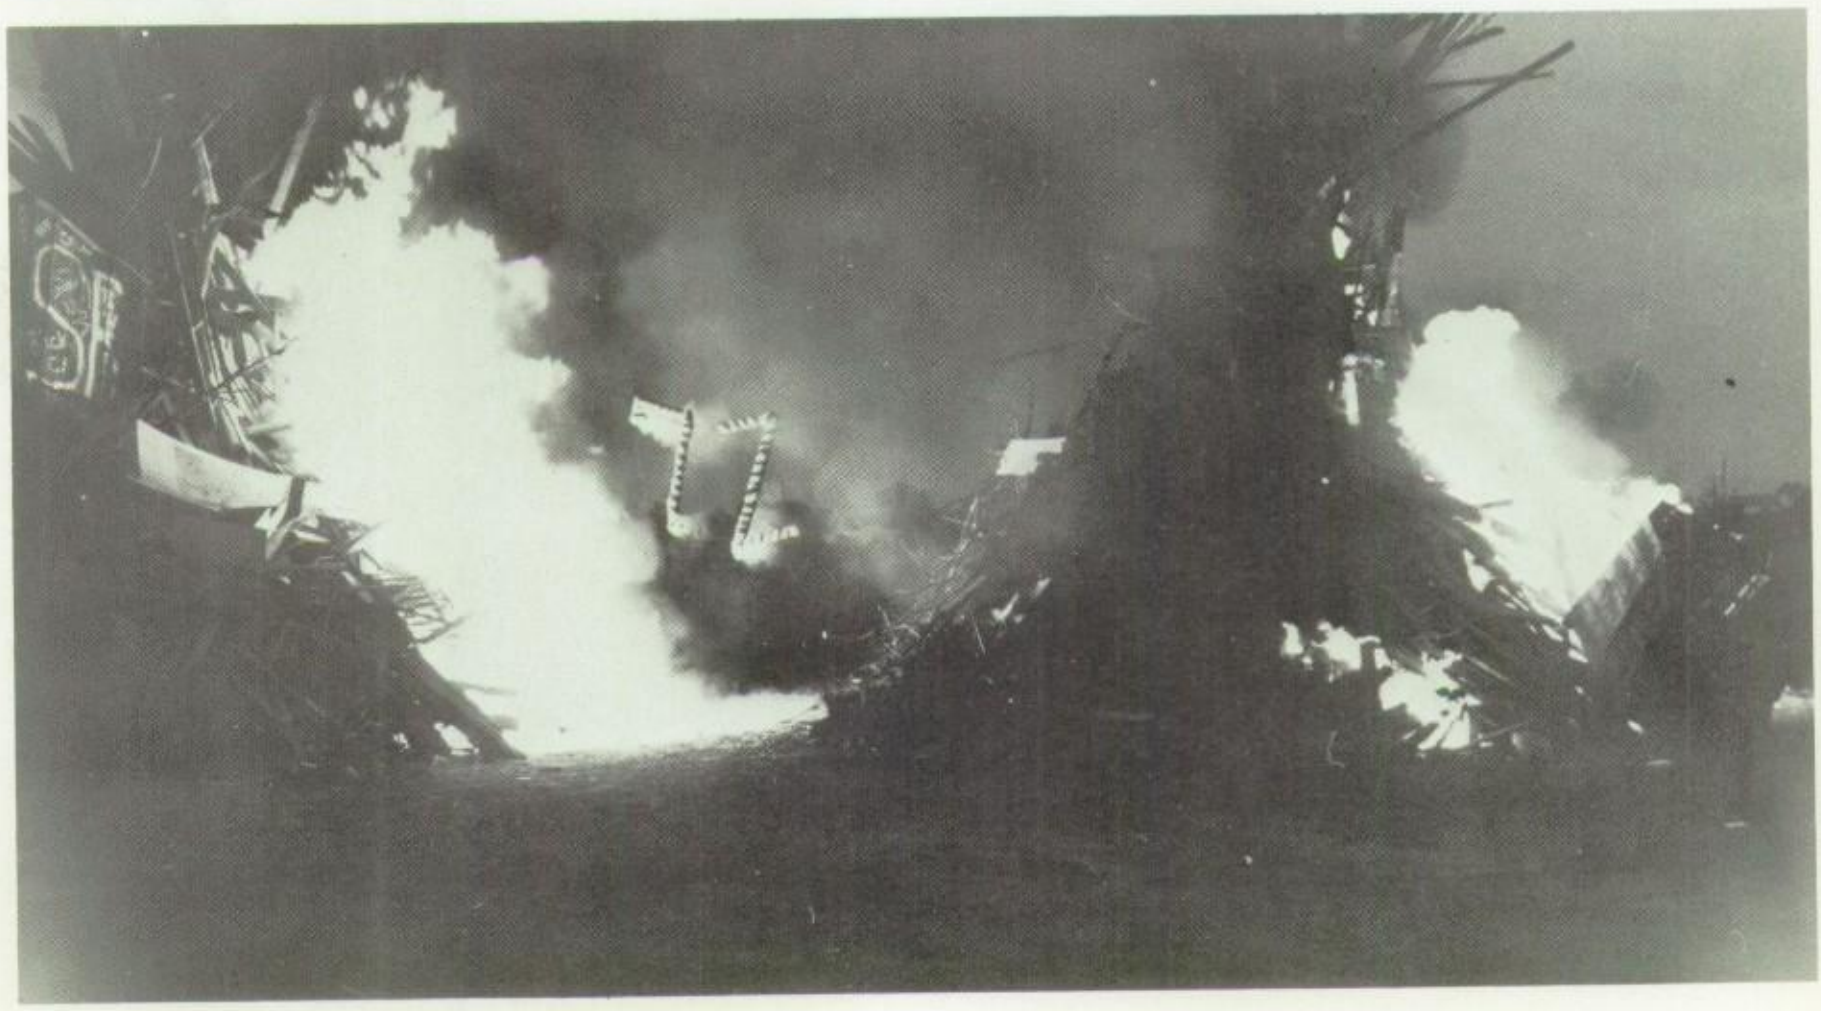
HALE CENTER HIGH SCHOOL

WALK NOT ALONE . . . from the beginning, I discover that I WALK NOT ALONE — that here is a place where I share common goals to attain the highest degrees of intellectual, physical, and personal growth. I know that only through togetherness will I be able to realize my dreams here — this place where I plan for tomorrow.

RESA
JILL



Through the memories of yesterday, and the happenings of today, I become a true Owl. I know that the school is more than a building and every individual is more than a friend. I cherish each moment here for I know that moment will never come again.

WALK NOT ALONE . . . but with the cherished thoughts and memories of day-to-day living in HCHS. Every student is a vital part of our student life. The shy, the bold, the lazy, and the busy all contribute to the school days we shall remember forever.

ALEC LINDLEY ACQUIRES a spot of sin every time he overcharges.

The number of duties a student is expected to do in a single day is more than more than one might think. Still, the tasks are performed with admirable regularity and it is this performance that is the basis for Student Life.

Aspiring Actors Prepare For 'Broadway'

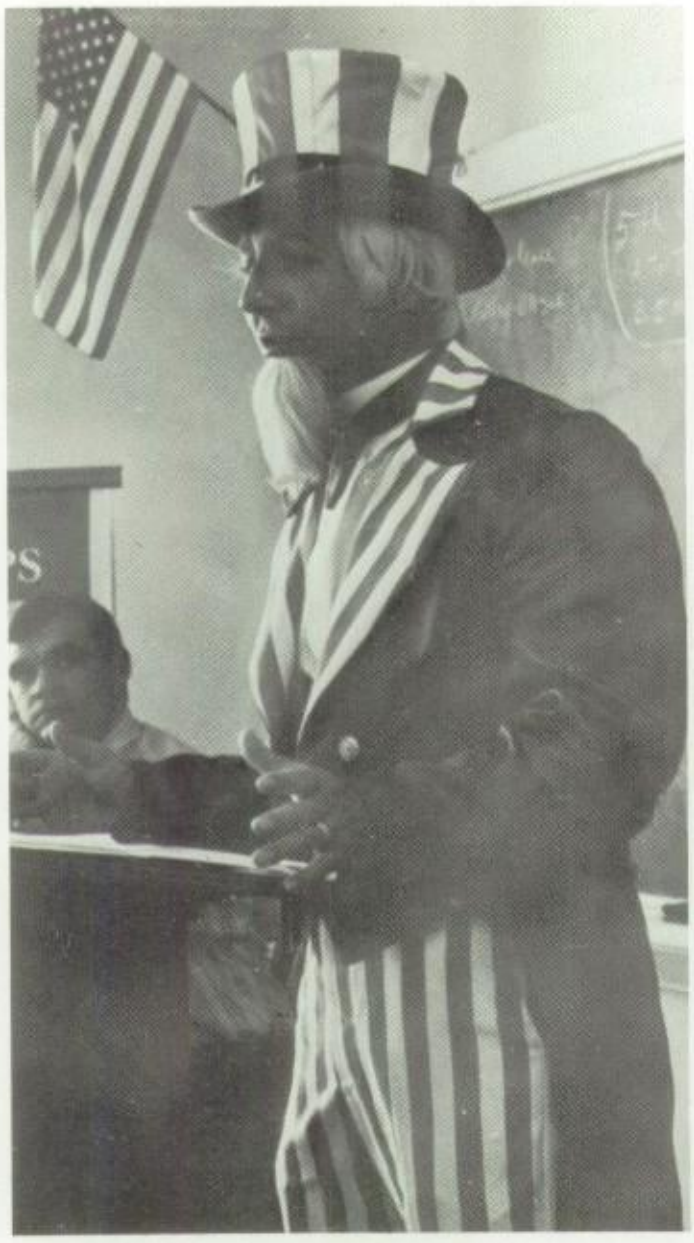
RENEE CHILTON AND Terry Burelsmith watch the Christmas past spirit as Ginny Winchell prompts their lines.

Hale Center High School has proved a Mecca in which big Hollywood producers can find actors and actresses. The success of several plays had direct bearing on how much the Juniors and Seniors had to eat at the banquet, and how far away from home the Seniors could go on their trip.

Drama class too has presented plays throughout the year. On special occasions, the student body has been enlightened with thoughts from patriotism to comedy.



UNCLE SAM EXPOUNDS on his own style of patriotism as Mr. Fleming listens raptly.

All work and no play make Hale Center High School a dull boy. So they play a little, thanks to various trips, dances, speakers, special occasions, etc. It must work because no one has ever accused Hale Center High of being a dull boy.

WALK NOT ALONE . . . but run with the endurance of an Owl. Through victory and defeat — through triumph and despair — the Owls of HCHS show pride in every outing in which they represent the school. With spirit bright and goals set high, each fights not as an individual, but as a team.

The Owls started the season with a shut-out over the Post Antelopes 21-0.

SUE HAMMIT (31) relays the ball across court.

DEEANN NERVOUSLY WATCHES the ball and hopes a teammate will pass it to her.

The Owlettes lost their first game of the year to Spearman who later became the AA State Champions. Their first loss in 23 games brought tears to everyone of the Owlettes fans. The girls played a strong game throughout the first half and were ahead 23-19 at the half-time break.

The second half was just as close as the first, when the score bounced back and forth. The girls finally broke under the pressure and the game ended 42-47 in favor of Spearman.

LYNNEA MASSEY (13) stretches to shoot over Spearman guards as Dianne Law (43) pursues.

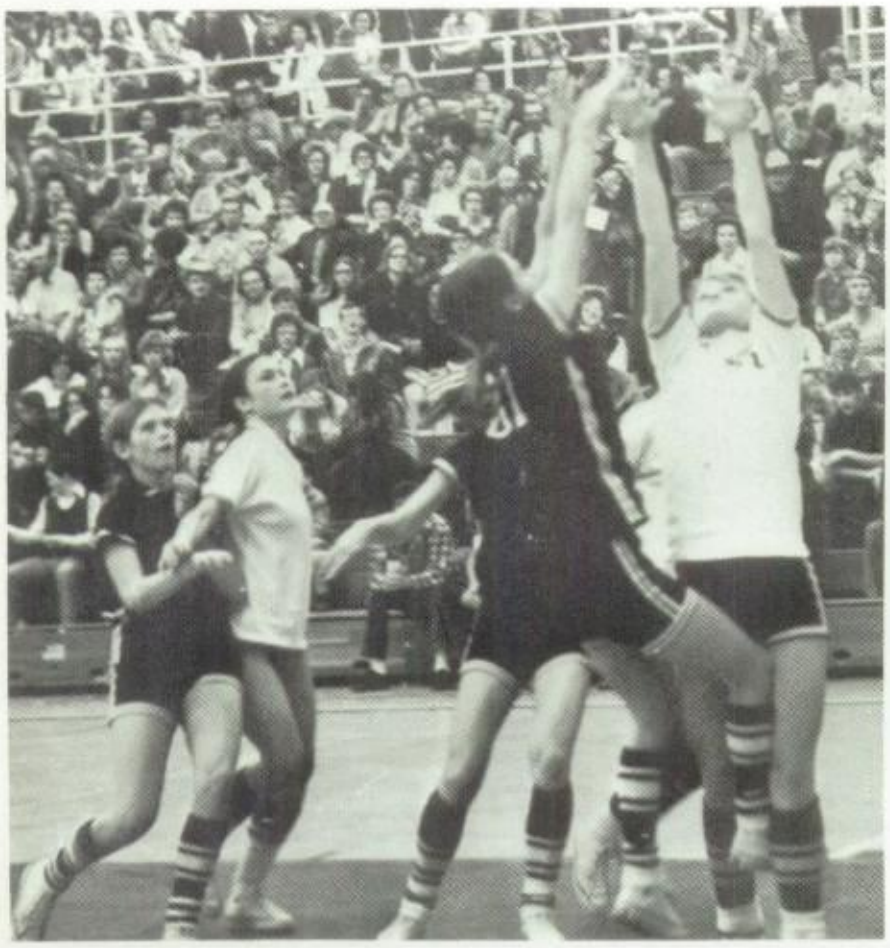
Eight Seniors Win From Beginning To End



DEEANN HOOPER (25) inches around a Wylie guard as another Wylie player "knees" Sue Hammit (31).

The eight seniors of the Owlette team have gone a long way together with many successes. From the time they started playing basketball in the seventh grade they were a winning team. Only two games were lost from their seventh grade through their freshman year. From their sophomore year through their senior they were defeated only ten times. In their six years of basketball they won District five times, went to Bi-District three times, and Regional twice.

Success like this comes from a lot of hard work, good team and coach, but probably most of all, sincere devotion from each person.

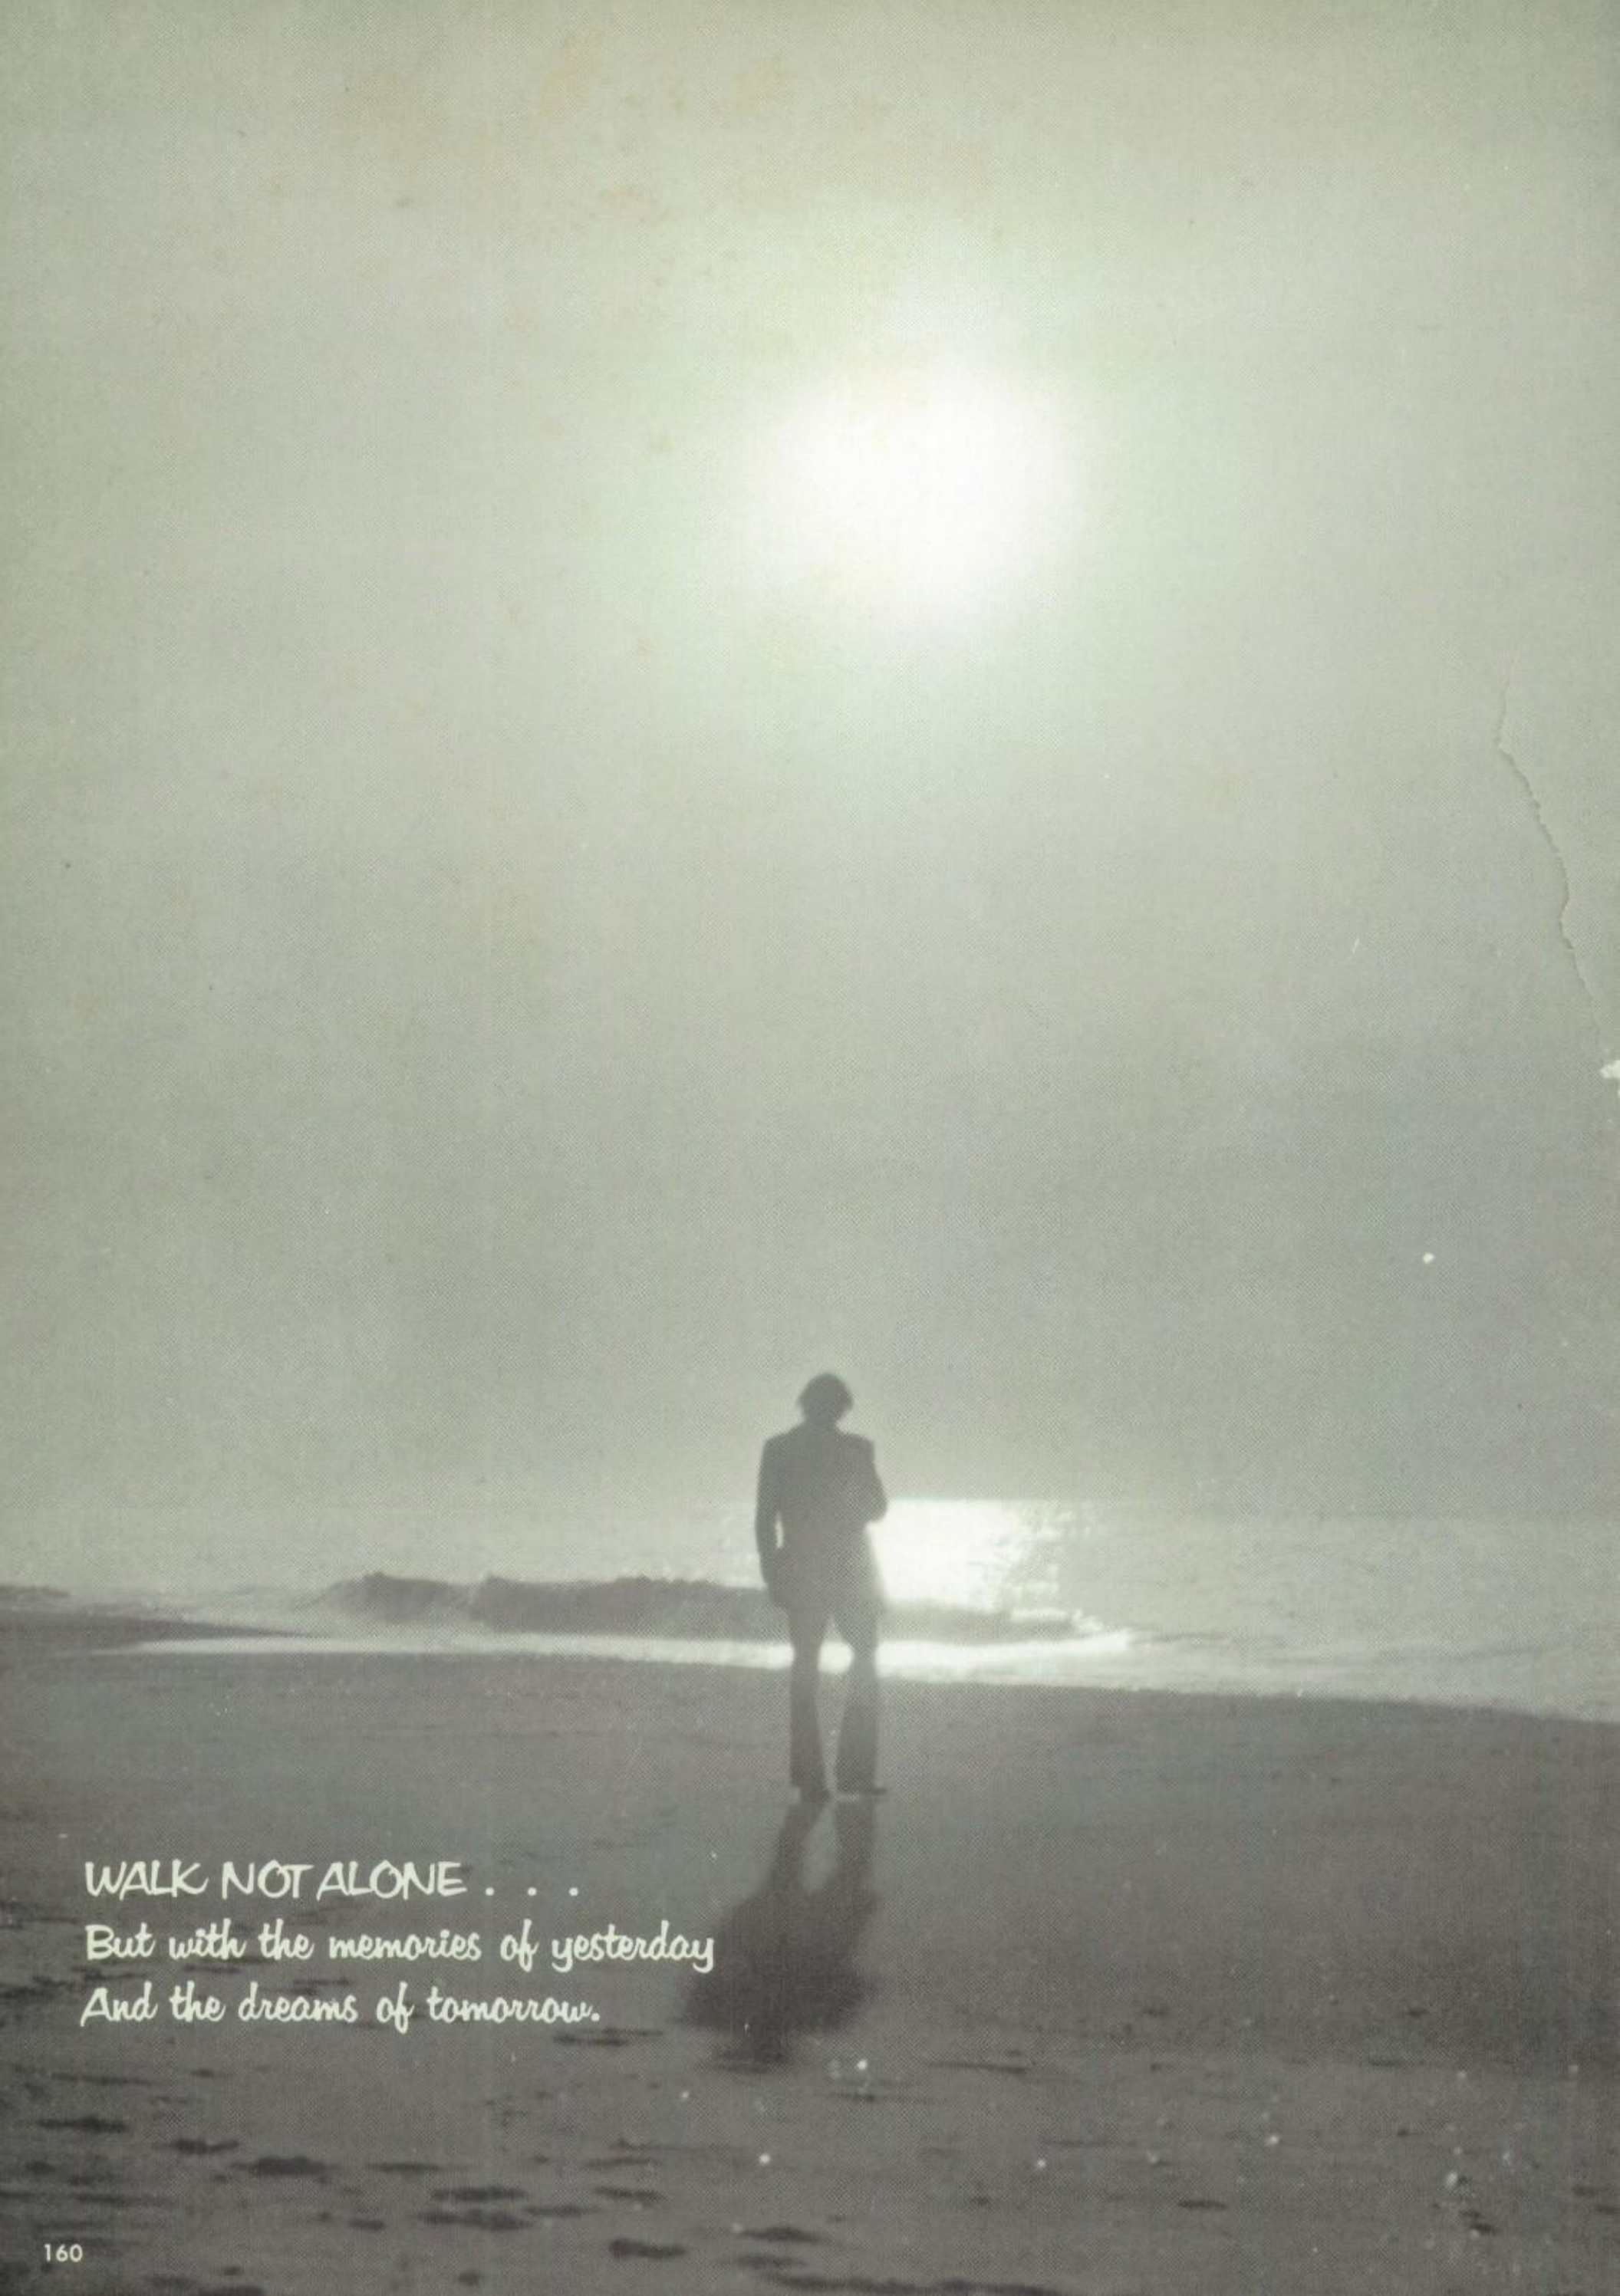
"The Owl" staff worked many hours, in and out of school, to complete the 1972 edition of the Hale Center Schools yearbook.

General format and organization of the yearbook were changed by the staff. Members also attempted to place more "action" in the book by using candid pictures of events wherever possible. Picture settings took on a new look, too.

In organizing the book, staffers divided it into eight sections: opening, student life, sports, favorites, organizations, faculty, classes, and advertising. Pages for the index, "The Owl" staff, and closing were included at the end.

Mrs. Darlene Galligan sponsored the yearbook.



WALK NOT ALONE . . .
But with the memories of yesterday
And the dreams of tomorrow.
